

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Contact: Lisa Lovejoy/EcoFish, Inc
T: 603.834.6034 / E: lisa@ecofish.com

EcoFish Receives National Ecological Award

(August 6, 2007 – Washington, D.C) The Ecological Society of America (ESA), the nation's oldest ecological science organization, has presented its prestigious Corporate Award to EcoFish, Inc.

Announced at ESA's Annual Meeting in San Jose, California, the award honors EcoFish's incorporation of sound ecological concepts, knowledge, and practices into its planning and operating procedures.

EcoFish, located in Dover, New Hampshire is a distributor of seafood exclusively from environmentally sustainable fisheries. The species that EcoFish offers are evaluated and approved by an independent Seafood Advisory Board, made up world renowned marine scientists and conservationists.

EcoFish supplies 100+ restaurants fresh and frozen seafood under the EcoFish brand and as Henry & Lisa's Natural Seafood in 2000+ grocery and natural foods stores throughout the country. Species include Wild Alaskan Salmon, Wild Mahimahi from Ecuador, Bay Scallops from Argentina, Shrimp from Ecuador, Albacore Tuna from the Pacific Northwest, Wild Alaskan Pollock.

Previous winners of the ESA Corporate Award include: Bon Appétit Management Company, Norm Thompson Outfitters, Taylor Guitars, and the Straus Family Dairy

About Ecological Society of America

ESA is a scientific, non-profit, 9000-member organization founded in 1915. Through ESA reports, journals, membership research, and expert testimony to Congress, ESA seeks to promote the responsible application of ecological data and principles to the solution of environmental problems. ESA publishes four scientific, peer-reviewed journals: Ecology, Ecological Application, Ecological Monographs, and Frontiers in Ecology and the Environment. For more information about the Society visit www.esa.org.

###